[From Panch's Pocket Book.] Renders, "constant" or inconstant, of course you know the Toothpickers. One meets them at every evening party that one goes to. In fact, no evening party would be thought complete without them. One is sure to find a herd of them in the doorway of the drawing-room, and a straggler or two is always to be seen upon the staircase. They derive their name of Toothpicker from the sort of after-dinner toothpick air there is about them. They come generally in couples, and come rather late, and with the laisser aller look of men who have just been manis continued the Toothpickers were ulbut the fear of being placed in Bedlam prethe insanity. Evening party-goers never need look far to find a Toothpicker. One cannot escape seeing them, for they are alroom nor enter it without a tuesle to get past them. If your partner wants an ice, you have to squeeze through them to get it. And then they jam up close again the instant you've gone through, as though they were all hung on hinges and had doorsprings in their backbones. The Toothpickers belong to the tribe of Wallflowers; but there are between them some marked points of difference. In the first place, they are only found of the male VA .- By virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court sex. As far as we can learn, no one ever of Alexandria County, rendered at its May yet has seen a female Toothpicker. If ever term, 1858, and of another decree tendered at one existed it may now be classified among November term, 1858, in the case of Swann, the extinct animals. Again, unlike the Wallflowers, the Toothpickers are seldem to be found inside the drawing room. They frequent the ice-room and the stairerse, and the landings; but the walls of the drawing-room are generally tree from them. The doorposts are, however, their favorite place of resting. It is always there the Toothpickers do mostly congregate. They are not shy animale, but they like to keep together, and they don't care to associate with other than their species. They avoid locomotion, and seldom take much exercise; but it must not be inferred that they are weak or muscleless .-The way in which they stand a' out the dierway the whole evening is a satisfying proof that their dorsal muscles are prodigiously day of sale. The deterred payments, to bear indeveloped is shown by the tenacity with terest and to be secured by the bonds of the pubacks against the doorposts. They adhere payment is made. to place as firmly as a government official; and, like the whigs, if you displace them, they are certain to come back. A cry of "Supper!" generally induces them to move, but I have known a herd of Toothpickers refuse to be disturbed by it. Although they condescend occasionally to stalk through a quadrille, it may be laid down as a rule that the Toothpickers don't dance, I recollect once asking one the reason why he didn't. And te graciously informed me he thought "dawncing a gweat baw-for it made one feel s:-aw-sticky, and it-aw-diswanged one's waistcoat." In general, the Toothpickers are not very communicative. Two words in ten minutes seems about the pace at which their conversation travels. After supper, certainly, thanks to their libstions of pale ale and champagne, they generally contrive to sparkle up a bit. But till they get the liquids they are generally mutes. Mutes too they are really, in more senses than one. For they look, in their white much more fit to be on duty on the doorstep others. at a funeral than to be hanging, like wet blankets, about the doorway of a drawingroom. Another of their peculiarities is that one never hears them largh. It can't be for the want of having cause for laughter for you know at every evening party there's always lots to laugh at. But I suppose they don't like "twouble" and think it a "great baw" or are afraid that the exercise of laughing might fatigue them. Or, possibly it may he that they think it "wude" to laugh. I believe it's thought a eign of good breeding not to laugh. At least, it certainly is the fact that the bigher the society the less laughing you hear in it. If the best of jokes be cracked (and you know in some circles it is thought extremely vulgar to crack jokes) you will always find the Tocthpickers will never condescend to do the least bit more than smile at them. Indeed, their heartiest fit of laughter is only a loud smile. They seem to bottler it somehow, and let it explode inwardly, like bad ginger beer. I have been all my life an observer of the Toothpickers, and I declare I never heard one actually laugh. You ofter catch them smiling, but this is all they do; and they do this a la Carker, just to show their teeth. The most boisterously bent of them shrink from an indulgence in open cachination. If they ever are amused (and it is no easy labor to amuse a Toothpicker), they smile a sort of half-laugh as a proof of their enjoyment. Crack your best of jokes with them, and this is all you get for it. They dare not open their lips far for fear their toothpick should drop out, or lest they disarrange the curl of their moustaches. As wide mouths are thought vulgar, they take care not to stretch theirs by giving a broad grin, and as for ever getting them to ring a peal of laughter, you might as well expect to hear them ringing a Bob

CAPITAL OVER $250,000, AND CONSTANTLY INCREASING.
The charter of this Company offers more 14. vorable advantages to the farmer and others. than any other company chartered in the State by insuring with or without a premium note ... If the applicant prefer, he can pay the full amount of the premium in cash, or by effecting a cash insurance for two years, the insured saves one eighth of the amount he would otherwise have to pay: or by becoming a member, and giving a small premium note, the insured saves nearly one half of the amount charged by Stock Companies, when insuring from year to year. This is the advantage resulting from the combination of THE CASH AND MUTUAL PRINCIPLE This company commenced issuing Policies against loss or damage by fire, on the 19th of March, 1854, since which time over live thousand seven hundred persons have insured and become members of the Company, and over thirty thousand dollars have been paid for losses. Having trebled our business during the past year, we feel grateful for the liberal patronage bestowed upon the Company thus far, and for its flattering prospects of future usefulness. The Directors hope and believe that by prudence caution and a rigid system of economy, they will establish for this Company a reputation for cheapness and safety, not surpassed by any Company in the U. States, All differences in settlement of losses, may be determined by three disinterested arbitrators of the County where such loss happened, to be mutually chosen by the insured and the Company.
